Program Summary (Briefly summarize the action and follow up items from your detailed responses on subsequent pages.)

While we are pleased with this results of our assessment, the Theatre & Dance department faculty have decided to substantially rework our Student Learning Outcomes and instruments going forward. We have developed more pertinent outcomes and more nuanced instruments for use beginning in the 2020/2021 academic year. These new outcomes are better tailored to each degree program we offer and will provide better and more reliable data collection. They are as follows:

Outcome 1: Students will demonstrate an acquaintance with a wide selection of theatre repertory including the principal eras, genres, and cultural sources.

- Instrument: Students will bring a list of performances they've seen and participated in during their time at WKU to their 6th semester jury. The primary instrument for measuring achievement will be based on the number of eras, genres, and cultural sources represented on their list, as compared to a master list of categories prepared by the department. Students ability to correctly identify the genres, eras, and cultural sources of a certain number of the productions they have listed during a conversation with faculty will serve as a secondary measurement.

Outcome 2: Students will demonstrate the ability to develop and defend informed judgments about theatre.

- Instrument: Discussion of a performance they saw or participated in in the 6th semester jury. As part of a discussion with faculty, students will be expected to state their evaluation of one or more aspects of a performance they attended or participated in. Their evaluation should be: supported by specific evidence/examples which are appropriately analyzed; understood in relation to knowledge of theatre as a whole; placed in context of the production circumstances. Faculty will use a rubric to score the student's ability to do.

Outcome 3. Demonstrate meaningfully participation in at least three different aspects of theatrical production

- Instrument: Faculty review of anonymized student Resumes and Student Production Resumes.

Dean's office note: The last proposed outcome needs revision. Can this be revised to reflect something other than participation? How do the resumes indicate whether the participation is meaningful or not? How about something like "be able to articulate experience in at least three different aspects of theatrical production"? That way you're assessing the resume, rather than the experience.

Criteria for Student Success	Required artifacts and criteria for success vary by level and area of interest. A full explanation of the Jury/Portfolio Review process is included in the attached BA Student Handbook. At least 85 % of BA Theatre Students participating in JPR will be rated satisfactory or excellent by assembled faculty.
Program Success Target for this Measurement	At least 85 % of Theatre & Dance majors participating in JPR will be rated satisfactory or excellent by assembled faculty.	Percent of Program Achieving Target	93.06%
Methods	The Department of Theatre & Dance Portfolio Review Process (JPR) provides an important opportunity for the Theatre & Dance faculty to periodically review an individual student's overall growth and development as they progress through our programs, to provide constructive, individualized criticism aimed at maximizing each student's full potential for success after graduation, and to assess the overall effectiveness of our programs. All students seeking a major in the Department of Theatre & Dance are required to participate in this portfolio review process. At each JPR they are asked to bring several artifacts documenting their progress in the program, including a student production resume, professional resume, and sample materials. JPR objectives, process and alignment with accreditation standards of the National Association of Schools of Theatre and the National Association of Schools of Dance are explained in the attached student handbooks. Number of individual JPR student Jury/Portfolio Reviews in 2018/2019: 167 Percentage of poor ratings: 6.93% Percentage of satisfactory ratings: 65.51% Percentage of Excellent ratings: 27.55% Percentage of satisfactory or excellent ratings: 93.06% See attached JPR Rating Summaries for further details.

Actions (Describe the decision-making process and actions planned for program improvement. The actions should include a timeline.)
The department faculty is pleased program with the results of this metric. The JPR process continues to be a central part of the department's program assessment and quality control. The department notes a rise in excellent rating for the spring 2019 semester, and attribute this to increasingly successful emphasis on audition and interview preparation of seniors in the program.
Follow-Up (Provide your timeline for follow-up. If follow-up has occurred, describe how the actions above have resulted in program improvement.)
While we are pleased with this metric, the Theatre & Dance department faculty have decided to substantially rework our Student Learning Outcomes and instruments going forward. We have developed more pertinent outcomes and more nuanced instruments for use beginning in the 2020/2021 academic year. These new outcomes are better tailored to each degree program we offer and will provide better and more reliable data collection.

Actions (Describe the decision-making process and actions planned for program improvement. The actions should include a timeline.) The department is pleased we achieved our target for the fall 2018 semester. The number of JPR participants dipped below 50% in the spring of 2019, however. This was not unexpected. The number participants each semester varies according to enrollment, cohort size, and progress through the degree. The spring semester JPR figure reflects a smaller than average senior cohort, and a larger than average sophomore cohort who were not required to participate in JPR. The department will continue to monitor these numbers and address issues of participation and student progress, should a trend emerge.
Follow-Up (Provide your timeline for follow-up. If follow-up has occurred, describe how the actions above have resulted in program improvement.) While the department feels the JPR process is a vitally important aspect of the program,, the Theatre & Dance department faculty have decided to substantially rework our Student Learning Outcomes and instruments going forward. We have developed more pertinent outcomes and more nuanced instruments for use beginning in the 2020/2021 academic year. These new outcomes are better tailored to each degree program we offer and will provide better and more reliable data collection.

Actions (Describe the decision-making process and actions planned for program improvement. The actions should include a timeline.)
The department has shifted its focus in recent years on creating work which challenges our students to expand their cultural understanding, and to explore a variety of ideas, values experiences, people, and cultures. As a result, students are enjoying more and more opportunities for applied learning experiences in such works. The department will consider resetting this target to a higher point for the coming year.
